President's Message, 2012

Welcome to the Woman's Club of Palo Alto Spring Kitchen Tour. Each year we organize a major fundraiser to support our commitment to community philanthropy and the preservation of our historic clubhouse.

First, a bit of background: The Woman's Club was organized in 1894, the year that Palo Alto was incorporated. The women were dedicated to "self-improvement, mutual help and community involvement." The founders of the club supported the building of the first high school, the first town library and the planting of the first city trees. They also raised funds for the purchase of the corner lot on Homer and Cowper (for $1500) and selected Charles Edward Hodges to design our Tudor-Craftsman style clubhouse to blend into the residential neighborhood. We take great pride in preserving this historic building.

In addition to focusing on community involvement and philanthropy, we also foster friendship and self-improvement through our monthly luncheon meetings, which feature stimulating speakers. Many members participate in special interest groups - a book group, film study, writing, Bridge and history. Our Rental Committee oversees rental of our clubhouse for weddings and special occasions.

The Kitchen Tour: This year we are featuring five kitchens: two in the Leland Manor neighborhood, one in Crescent Park, and two in Old Palo Alto. We've added a tasting menu by a noted organic foods Chef from Lyfe Restaurant, the premier organic foods restaurant in Palo Alto. Fleming's Steakhouse will be featured at another location.

We are particularly grateful to our sponsors, Luther Burbank Savings and The Palo Alto Weekly. A very special thanks to Bobbi Fox and Nancy MacLeod, co-chairs of the Kitchen Tour, along with members of their committee who have worked tirelessly to make this year's tour better than ever!

Thank you for supporting the Woman's Club of Palo Alto. Enjoy the Tour!

1861 Waverley Street

From The Owners

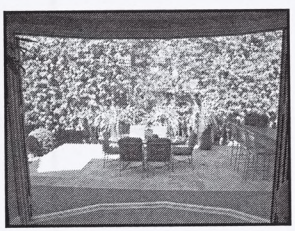

We purchased 1861 Waverley in 2003. The home was designed and built by a father who built it for his daughter. Upon its completion she decided to move to Woodside instead and the home was put up for sale. When we first saw this new Cape Cod Revival home we knew we had found the home of our dreams. The kitchen, in particular, was unique, tasteful and warm…exactly what we were looking for. It includes a DACOR six-burner, double-oven gas range. Two full-size MIELE dishwashers and a Subzero side-by-side refrigerator. The custom cabinetry is hand-glazed and the MAYAN travertine countertops and matching fireplace makes for a clean and comfortable look. The eucalyptus hardwood floors, we felt, were a perfect choice for this unique home.

In January 2011 we completed a six-month project to transform our backyard into a more useful, useable space. Up until June of 2010 the yard consisted of a small patio flanked by grass. We installed a NANA wall and a custom aluminum grate, together with tumbled travertine stairs and patio to help smoothly transition from indoor to outdoor living. The outdoor kitchen we installed includes a VIKING gas BBQ grill and two gas burners, a PERLICK refrigerator and ice maker, Stainless built-in cooler, sink and cabinetry and also a recycle and garbage can pull-out cabinet. The countertops are honed Virginia Mist granite. This recently completed outdoor-living space has been the final piece in completing what we feel is our perfect home.

From The Owners

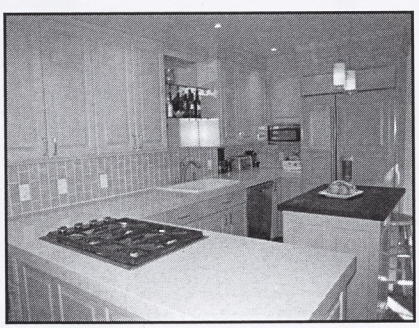

The third owner of this 1929 English style house has remodeled the kitchen three times over their 38 years in the house. This last remodel started, of course, with just needing a new dishwasher. But in discussing the kitchen problems with their long time designer and friend, Barbara Carlitz, it was decided that since they were getting new appliances maybe they could add more light in the kitchen and living room and perhaps open the kitchen wall to the living room thus getting more of a family room feel.

Carlitz added sky lights to the living room ceiling, added another window seat to the area the family called "Starbucks," installed LED lighting in the kitchen, and took out the wall between the kitchen and living room. Barbara Carlitz' philosophy is two fold. One…often families have enough space and don't need to add on….just reconfigure and clean out. And two….she is adamant that the remodel, particularly the materials like windows, look original.

The couple was thrilled with their designer and contractor, Bob Rosenberg (see GR8WORK Builders Inc. page 26), and are very happy with the new kitchen. The flat screen TV is the concession to the husband who thought he had just bargained for a new dishwasher!

1414 Edgewood Drive

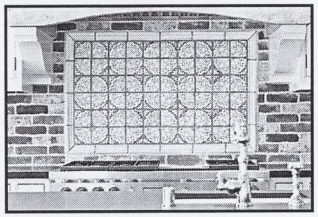

From The Owners

Welcome to our home! It was originally built in 1935 and recently underwent its first remodel. Our goal with the remodel was to create a place that didn't feel too new or ostentatious, but where people could truly feel "at home". We think we've done it!

The kitchen includes brushed black granite countertops, farmhouse sinks, and a range hood cased in reclaimed wood. Also, the pendants over the island are reproductions of station gas lanterns from New York City. For us, the most distinguishing feature is the brick backsplash. We knew early on that we wanted a brick backsplash, but struggled to find a truly antique brick veneer, or something newer that didn't look contrived. When the time came to install the backsplash, we coincidentally were taking down a portion of the backyard's brick wall that was beyond repair. Once we cleaned the brick, we found that it was exactly what we'd been looking for. One interesting fact is that the brick was originally salvaged after the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 and later used to build the wall around the property. We're really pleased that we were able to bring some of this history into the house.

760 Northampton Drive

From The Owners

Both of us knew when we purchased 760 Northampton Drive in 2006, that it had great bones to create a special environment for our immediate and extended family, and a special place to share with friends. We fell in love with everything about the 1941 post-industrial style of architecture including the three authentic period bathrooms when we saw it.

After living in our new home for three years we decided to investigate the feasibility of a remodel. Both of us being passionate about our Industrial Design profession and our artistic abilities we needed to find collaborative architectural and construction firms. With many of our own ideas we formed a unique bond with our architects to discuss the best direction. During the process we discovered that our home was designed by architect Birge Clark and is the sister house to what was Mr. Clark's 1941 family home on Edgewood Drive in Palo Alto but with a reversed layout.

We replaced all the windows and doors, upgrading the electrical system that we hadn't done in 2006, replacing all the cold water plumbing, the hot water heater, remodeling all the bathrooms, adding insulation, upgrading the heating system and installing a home audio/video/security system. As part of the extensive home remodel we changed the floor plan of the kitchen, separate intimate eating area, office, full bath and laundry, mudroom, pantry, back door access by adding an addition. The larger floor plan allowed us to move the rooms around so that a kitchen, mudroom and back door could take advantage of the west by southwest natural light exposure, move storage closets and drawers and add windows to see the front entrance from the kitchen sink, create a laundry room and downsize the full bath to a powder room. This also created a better floor plan for kitchen work and communing areas by adding an island, kitchen table, second sink and move the appliances and cabinets for a better flow. The adjoining laundry room with a pantry off the mudroom has a sink and ample counter space that doubles as an extension of the kitchen and workroom during entertaining.

The steel framed windows were changed to a similar pattern of wood framed windows. The warm natural finished douglas fir trim with oil rubbed bronze hardware was chosen to work with the white oak, stained chestnut, hardwood floors that were done throughout the house in 2006. To work with the natural light and create an inviting, warm kitchen, white granite was used for the counter tops and island so it could complement the natural finished rift white oak cabinetry, stainless steel sinks, faucets, appliance trim and cabinet handles. The small Thasos marble tiles used in a vertical format as the backsplash on two walls balance the kitchen's nine foot ceiling, the lines of the long horizontal kitchen counters and the mass of the cabinetry. Wood panels were used on the dishwasher, freezer and refrigerator to add warmth to the room. A single coat of black stain was added to the base of the island's cabinets to float the white granite, accentuate the granite waterfall design at one end of the island and compliment the chestnut hardwood floors. An additional granite waterfall detail was added to one end of a counter at the busy mudroom doorway.

From The Owners

In 2003 we built this Spanish Colonial home for our family of five, our dogs and various other animals. We like to be together and knew we wanted to create family spaces that were bright, warm, comfortable, and with three boys, indestructible! As we enjoy big gatherings of friends and family, we wanted an open feel with an easy flow in and out of the house to the patio area. We chose simple, earthy materials, rounded walls and welcoming arches that made us feel like we have always lived here.

Through our front door and down the hall through colorful walls, there are entrances to two rooms: the kitchen and adjoining family room on the left and a large dining room to the right. Through the arch to the kitchen, you will see the knotty alder cabinetry, built-in entertainment center, and an island with a mottled, sea green surface. The windows and glass doors give this area many bright and cheerful views.

In the kitchen we wanted to optimize storage space and reserved a large "open pantry" area just off the main kitchen. This pantry area also has a simple desk and shelving to house my cookbooks! The island and counter surfaces are stained concrete where normal wear and tear blends in with the charming imperfections of the material in general. The Island has been uniquely shaped to seat four on the barstools while providing comfortable talking space and ease of movement around it.

We love to cook and regularly use the vegetables from our garden, eggs from our chickens, and locally hunted wild game to make the experience in our kitchen even more meaningful. We wanted the kitchen to be a place where we could cook together and enjoy entertaining guests in the dining room, just through the arches. The adjoining family room is a colorful and comfortable place to hang out. Cooking and visiting with a fire going and our favorite sport on TV, make for a great Saturday afternoon together. We invite you to enjoy our kitchen design and hope you will feel the warmth of family gatherings and celebrations that continue to make this area special for us.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

The Woman's Club of Palo Alto – A Brief History

On June 20, 1894, twenty four women met at the old Presbyterian Church to form the Palo Alto Woman's Club. They dedicated the Club to the goals of "Friendship, Self Improvement and Community Involvement."

These pioneer women made incalculable contributions to Palo Alto. They founded the first library, built the first high school, planted the first trees, started the first parks and fought wholeheartedly for woman's suffrage.

To fulfill their dream of building a Clubhouse, a lot was purchased in 1906 for the princely sum of $1,500.00. Located on the northwest corner of Homer Avenue and Cowper Street, members feared that this location was "too far out in the country" from the fledgling town. For the next 10 years, incessant fund raising through receptions, food markets, costume parties, sell-out speakers such as Helen Keller plus the publication of two books – The Santa Clara Valley and a Woman's Club Cook Book enabled them to raise $10,500.00. Clubhouse construction began in 1916.

Charles Edward Hodges (1866-1943) was chosen as architect of the Tudor/ Craftsman style Clubhouse. Hodges, as Stanford's resident architect, had overseen the construction of the Quadrangle, Memorial Church and the Museum as well as eight buildings listed on Palo Alto's Historic Inventory. Our Clubhouse, located at 475 Homer Avenue, is on that Inventory as well as on the National Register of Historic Buildings.

History teaches everything, including the future. The current 225 members of the Woman's Club of Palo Alto have learned well from their founders. Whether renting our charming Clubhouse or holding fundraising events, we cherish our commitment to the community by providing stipends and service to local non profits. Monthly lectures and interest groups such as the Book Group, the Investment Club, Bridge and the Cine Circle provide opportunities for self-improvement. Most important, are the friendships that are nurtured.
In 2012, as in 1894, The Woman's Club of Palo Alto is committed to its founding mission of "Friendship, Self Improvement and Community Involvement."
